

“A car can’t run on empty and neither can your brain. Nadovim refills the tank with premium gas.”

Erin Mewshaw, RN

Age: 31

Hometown: Port Jefferson, NY

Occupation: Registered Nurse / Graduate Student

Erin is passionate about helping others. Her interest in healing and medicine go far beyond her career, and she has a deep appreciation for quality products that do not produce side-effects yet still are effective. Always on the go and striving to learn more (currently studying to become a nurse practitioner), she trusts only a handful of products to stay productive, healthy, and ready to take on the next challenge in life.

ERIN'S STORY

As a RN in the medical field, I'm very particular about the type of supplements I take on a regular basis. Far too often we disregard the importance of quality over quantity. While it's possible to get adequate vitamins and nutrients from consuming a healthy diet, sometimes through the hustle and bustle of daily life we forgo quality for convenience. This results in lackluster energy and stressed out adrenals.

As a current graduate student I find myself needing the extra jolt and concentration to get through full time work and night school. Nadovim has proven to be an invaluable supplement to help support my central nervous system and brain and keep my energy and focus level on point. It's become a daily ritual and one of the only supplements I strongly advise all patients, friends and family to take for its safety and effectiveness.

It's like I like to tell patients - you need to refuel the gas tank. A car can't run on empty and neither can your brain. Nadovim refills the tank with premium gas.
